

A black and white line drawing of a forest scene. In the foreground, a stream flows over several large, smooth rocks. The water is depicted with simple lines and ripples. The background is filled with tall, slender trees with dense, feathery foliage, possibly representing a forest of cypresses or similar trees. The overall style is that of a traditional woodcut or a detailed pencil sketch.

[A Psalm of David, when he fled from Absalom his son].
Jehovah, how are mine adversaries increased! Many are they that rise up against me.
