

A black and white line drawing of a forest scene. In the foreground, a stream flows from the left towards the right, with several large, smooth rocks scattered along its banks and in the water. The water is depicted with simple horizontal lines. The background is filled with a dense forest of tall, slender trees with pointed, evergreen-like foliage. The trees are drawn with vertical lines for trunks and layered, needle-like shapes for the canopy. The overall style is that of a traditional woodcut or a detailed pencil sketch.

All mine enemies shall be put to shame and sore troubled: They shall turn back, they shall be put to shame suddenly.