

A detailed black and white line drawing of a forest landscape. In the foreground, a stream flows from the left towards the right, with several large, smooth rocks scattered along its banks and in the water. The water is depicted with simple horizontal lines. The middle ground is filled with a dense forest of tall, slender trees with thick trunks and full, rounded canopies. The background shows more trees and a small, distant structure or clearing. The overall style is that of a classic children's book illustration.

Their fruit wilt thou destroy from the earth, And their seed from among the children of men.