

A detailed black and white line drawing of a natural landscape. In the foreground, a river flows from the left towards the center, with several large, fallen tree trunks and branches scattered along its banks. The river is bordered by rocks and patches of grass. In the middle ground, a dense forest of evergreen trees stands on a hillside. In the background, a range of mountains with jagged peaks is visible under a sky with wispy clouds. The overall scene is peaceful and scenic.

I was cast upon thee from the womb; Thou art my God
since my mother bare me.