

A detailed black and white line drawing of a forest landscape. In the foreground, a stream flows from the left towards the right, with several large, smooth rocks scattered along its banks and in the water. The water is depicted with simple horizontal lines. The background is filled with a dense forest of tall, slender trees with thick trunks and full, rounded canopies. The trees are drawn with fine lines to suggest foliage. The overall scene is peaceful and naturalistic.

I hate the assembly of evil-doers, And will not sit with the wicked.